DESCRIPTION

The Redhill Cinema project involved the installation of a Primary and Secondary grid system in a specialist design.

The initial design incorporated 600mm centres in a newly converted building to house building services on the primary grid, and Cinema ceiling and services on the secondary with specialist acoustic requirements.

This project demanded an acoustic solution which the team needed to work with due to the specialist noise requirements of the cinema projects.

CHALLENGES

The roof structure had to be assessed and specialist fixings applied to it to allow it to support the grid structure below it.

Concerns were voiced about the distance between the two grids creating either vibration or having a detrimental affect on the acoustic properties of the secondary grid.

We worked closely with the contractor and found best practice solution giving the full warranty that the client was looking for whilst also giving the sound performance which was imperative to the experience.

The service provided by both Gary Greenway at Atkore and Alan Toddhunter at ADA Fastfix was 2nd to none. Gary attended site and gave us all the required information we needed to place an accurate order for the correct components. This enabled a smooth order process and materials were on site the following week. The install has been a smooth process due to the input received from Gary at design stage. We would have no hesitation is using this product and service from Atkore on future projects. - Mark Hoey, Regional Construction Director
